Message From The COO

Women and Women Empowerment

Charu Kapoor
COO, NIIT Foundation

Women empowerment is the key to the growth of the nation. When women are living a safe, fulfilled and productive life, they can actualize their full potential - contributing their skills to the workforce and can raise happier and healthier children. One educated woman has the power to transform many generations.

Unfortunately, even today, our society is biased against women. Oftentimes, women have to quit their jobs or education to fulfill household duties. Very rarely are girls encouraged to build a sustaining career. They are hesitant to skill themselves, explore their full potential, and ask for a better division of household responsibilities and work.

At NF, as an organization, we lay a special focus on handholding women beneficiaries at various stages – Initially enabling them to build self-awareness, helping them take responsibility to obtaining new skills and leading a productive life. This may involve parent counseling and helping girls to build negotiation skills to stay the course of their plans. At times, at NIIT Foundation, the employers are also engaged to help the women continue working by addressing challenges at the workplace.

We have observed that in a job profile, where a woman candidate is better qualified, it is still offered to men because the perception is that men can do it better. When wages are paid, the firm's inbuilt conviction that women are capable of less work than men drives unequal salaries and wages for the same job.

Discrimination faced by women at the workplace includes unequal pay for equal work, lack of facilities, unsafe roads and transportation, denial of promotions, inadequate work-life balance, and so on. A recent survey found that 90% of women quit their jobs due to responsibilities at home or childcare vs 10% of men.

Sectors like IT/ITES/BPO/Retail/eCommerce and healthcare found women slowly making their way by upskilling and getting into job roles that they could fulfill. These sectors provided job roles that women could easily sustain along with other responsibilities.

Organizations like Microsoft, LinkedIn, TCS, DXC, WIPRO, Syntel, RPG, JMF, and JPM came forward to sponsor girls for upskilling and improving their livelihood, thus, enabling 7336 girls to start their first job in FY22 and FY23.

As trainers, employers and managers it is really important to break these glass ceilings and have an unbiased and progressive attitude toward education and career development for girls. Each one of us can take responsibility to ensure that in our surroundings- every girl child continues her education, and trust that every woman we interview will have the ability to fulfill her job duties.

NF's culture promotes gender equality and equal opportunity, women, and child safety. As a skilling organization, we are focussed to build courses which are promoting livelihood with gender equality. Our pedagogy, methods, and processes help build a culture of promoting and encouraging women learning continuity and empowering them through key life skills like confidence building, assertive communication, problem-solving, adapting to change, and resilience to lead a productive life.

COVER STORY

Preparing Women To Lead A Productive Life

Women are often called the architects of society. However, an estimated 75% of women, in India, do not join the workforce. Some of the reasons are – social constraints, family and home responsibility, distance, and educational constraints. At NIIT Foundation, we have tried to design courses such that girls can find meaningful employment in flexible roles within their organizations. Some of the courses are also delivered through a hybrid model which includes online sessions, the use of NF's Learning Management System app, and some classes at the center.

NIIT Foundation, with the support of its partners, also organizes financial literacy, and digital literacy sessions to educate women in rural and underserved regions.

A majority of our programs have a strong emphasis on empowering women, with 40-45% of total students, for every project, being women. Besides this, we have rolled out and delivered a few programs exclusively for women in the fields of digital and financial literacy. We specifically target certain sections of women, such as women drivers, women entrepreneurs, and women in rural areas, and curate a program that would cater to their requirements. Along with educating and skilling them, we actively work alongside women to help them find placement.

NIIT Foundation is very grateful to our partners who support our initiatives and help us successfully deliver to a large number of individuals.

Featured PARTNER

Employability for Women in STEM program with JP Morgan

NIIT Foundation and JP Morgan have collaborated to enhance women's skills and provide them the opportunity to succeed professionally in the IT & ITeS domain. The program 'Employability for Women in STEM' aims to provide career courses related to the IT & ITeS domain to girl candidates from the non-STEM background, across six cities in India to enable them to take up jobs in the IT & ITeS domain.

The association has been in place since 2017, during this period many girl candidates enrolled in the courses and were assisted with a job opportunity to find gainful employment. The program is still going strong and multiple training batches are running in the six cities.

The program is delivered in a hybrid manner that includes live classes, self-study through Learning Management System, and practical sessions. The training sessions begin face-to-face in a classroom setting to set the context and to build confidence in the girl candidates.

"My father, who works as an operator in a movie theater, was not very supportive of my education, and in fact, I had no one in my family to motivate me to study. When I failed in my class-10th, it shook me. I realized I needed to work hard to succeed in life and support my family. I went ahead and took up a Job Readiness course at CDC Ameenpur Center in Hyderabad. Post-completion of the course, I got a very good job. I am so grateful to NIIT Foundation and JP Morgan for training and skilling me and helping me to find a placement. I could enroll my brother in a private school, help my sister find a job, and support my mother in starting her business. The life skills that I learned have also helped me tremendously, and I am indebted to the center."

EMPLOYEES' VIEW

NF team members talk about their conscious contribution to women's education

B. Manjunath
Center Coordinator, DLC Melnagal, Tamil Nadu

"Financial exclusion and limited educational opportunities are the two main challenges faced by women in their learning stage. NIIT Foundation has reduced the constraints by giving them free education, training and equal opportunities as men. I find my job very fulfilling because, as a center coordinator, I help many such women come out of their shells and glow more luminously in society.

Readers of the newsletter can help us in our joint vision by encouraging their family or friends to educate girls and skill the women. Your one word of encouragement can make a huge difference in someone's life!"

Neelam Shourie
Consultant, New Delhi

"We all are well aware that the education or training of women is a life-changing prospect. Yet, their progress and development are threatened by challenges. Poverty and stigma attached to puberty take away their right to continue their education. Family's preference for son over daughter supports the son's education despite limited resources. On the other hand, women are subjected to biased behavior, domestic responsibility, child marriage, traditional customs, and misunderstood religious beliefs.

In my interaction with students from the underserved community on various occasions, the girls have manifested soaring hope. This needs to be harnessed from there on! If we 'let go' of this hope, it will diminish. Come forward to join NF's quest; oversee the training of at least one girl student and ensure that she's gainfully employed. The Change Will Happen!"

Rituja Oriya
Counselor, DLC Chhindwara, Madhya Pradesh

"Women face multiple challenges in accessing quality skill education which need to be addressed such as family pressure, gender discrimination, travel or health issues, and confusion of career scope. I feel honored that through my job role as a counselor, I am able to counsel many women and girls at the center to break their barriers, understand themselves as well as the world of employment and choose their careers according to their strengths and interests. Sometimes it requires their parents to be counseled as well. NIIT Foundation centers promote equal rights to quality skills by providing inclusive and quality learning environments and adequate and safe infrastructure."

VOLUNTEER Speak

"I am Sehyr Sood, a student of class XII (science), DPS RK Puram. My summer vacation was well rewarded when I was able to volunteer with NIIT Foundation at their CDC, Khanpur NF-HP Centre. The thought was of giving something back to society. Being a girl, I wanted to be a role model for other young girls and empower them to conduct themselves with confidence. That is why I planned some 'English Language Activities' for them to overcome their inhibitions toward this language."

The first thing that overwhelmed me was the enthusiasm of these children, especially girls, belonging to the underserved community. The girls exhibited the 'zest to achieve'. The students accepted me warmly. The Centre Head Ms. Annayee Rao was ever encouraging and caring."

Sehyr Sood, 17 years
Delhi

The concept of 'Opening Circle' and 'Transfer-in' was a beautiful novel experience for me. A few CMS sessions that I co-facilitated impacted not only the students at the Centre but also me. My tryst with Volunteering filled me with compassion and humility."

The overall experience was great! Volunteering helped me to inculcate and gain confidence while conducting an activity with a group of young people. It helped me strengthen my leadership skills further and helped me understand the different problems students faced while learning."
